TOLEDO MUSEUM OF ART ANNUAL REPORT

July 1, 2000 – June 30, 2001

DEAR FRIENDS,

We began the celebration of our Centennial in grand style by bringing the spectacular Eternal Egypt exhibition to Toledo, hosting a glorious benefit ball, and inviting the entire community to join us for a daylong birthday party. We announced an important capital campaign, began the renovation and preservation of our beautiful and historic building, transformed a former doctors' office building into a vital center for two of the community's arts organizations, and dedicated a sculpture garden first envisioned by Museum benefactors more than 80 years ago.

In the process of celebrating our rich history, we have reaffirmed and strengthened the great foundations upon which this remarkable institution was built: community support; innovation; an esteemed collection; positive visitor experiences; strong relationships with business; and a commitment to be a museum for all the people.

With your support, we have begun to craft what promises to be an even more remarkable future. We are guided by our mission's unwavering belief in the power of art to ignite the imagination, stimulate thought, and provide enjoyment as we strive to integrate art into the lives of people – in our community and around the world.

We invite you to learn more about the events of the past year by reading through the 12-month time line presented in this report. We also encourage you to take part in the remaining Centennial events scheduled through June 2002, including The Alliance of Art and Industry: Toledo Designs for a Modern America, an exhibition that focuses on Toledo's role in shaping daily life in twentieth-century America. And finally, we thank you for the role you've played in making the Toledo Museum of Art one of the greatest institutions of its kind in the world.

Preserving the past Preparing for the FUTURE

JULY 1, 2000 – JUNE 30, 2001

Shrouded in plastic and scaffolding, the Museum's white marble edifice underwent extensive restoration work for the first time in its history as part of the Museum's Centennial. No other single action so clearly represents the goal of the Toledo Museum of Art during the past fiscal year: to preserve the very best of the Museum's successful first century and begin to build upon it an even greater second hundred years.

Investing in the local economy

In total, the number of people who worked on Museum repairs – both interior and exterior – was 415. Most were from area firms, continuing the long-standing relationship between the Museum and local business. During fiscal year 2000, the Museum invested more than $20 million into the local economy.

Galleries closed, moving art

To make much-needed improvements to the Museum's interior, some galleries were closed temporarily and more than 500 works of art from the Museum's collections were moved to protect them from damage, then reinstalled when the electrical, plumbing, and heating/cooling work was completed.

OCTOBER 2000

Receiving Accolades

The Museum's jewelry collection was the cover story in the October issue of the Magazine Antiques. Noting that the Museum is one of the few such institutions in the country to have undertaken building a jewelry collection, scholar Janet Zapata said, "Given the distinguished pedigree of the [Museum's] current collection, jewelry historians and collectors should await new arrivals with eager anticipation."

Showcasing the BEST OF THE WEST

From its earliest days, the Museum has responded to the community and its interests. Last fall, in light of expressed public interest in American art, the Museum hosted The American West: Out of Myth, Into Reality. This exciting exhibition, which featured works produced from about 1825 to 1925 by artists such as Frederic Remington and George Catlin, explored the role that art and artists played in shaping the legend of the Old West.

Snagging a stegosaurus

Following fierce bidding at one of New York's leading auction houses, the Museum became the fortunate owner of Alexander Calder's Stegosaurus, a dramatic sculpture painted in the eponymous shade known as "Calder Red." Stegosaurus was made possible in part by Marshall Field's, by exchange, and funds from the Libbey Endowment,Gift of Edward Drummond Libbey.

Sharing the spotlight

Museum Director Roger Berkowitz (left) and Bill Dennler, director of the Toledo Zoo, were grand marshals of Toledo's annual Holiday Parade. The Zoo was founded in 1900, and the Museum, in 1901. Within the Museum itself, more recently established traditions include Halloween Fantasy Day, during which paintings "come to life" to tell their tales, and Winter Holiday, a colorful celebration featuring local choirs.

Selecting an architect

SANAA, Ltd., based in Tokyo, was chosen as architect for the Museum's proposed Center for Glass. The firm's lead architects, Kazuyo Sejima and Ryue Nishizawa, who are emerging as international talents, are known for their highly refined and innovative handling of glass and space. The Center for Glass will commemorate the Museum's century-long glass heritage and, at the same time, provide a state-of-the-art facility for the Museum's glass collection.

Continuing a legacy

Legendary cellist Yo-Yo Ma gave the first of two Florence Scott Libbey concerts to commemorate the Centenary. Mrs. Libbey, one of the Museum's founding benefactors, was instrumental in funding and designing the Peristyle in the early 1930s. At her death in 1938, she left a portion of her trust to support the Museum's pioneering efforts in music education.

Alexander Gardener, Gardener's Photographic Sketchbook of the War, 1856-66, 100 mounted albumen silver prints with lithographed frames and captions, Purchased with funds given by John Tiedtke, acc. no. 2000.52

In keeping with its long-time focus on graphic arts, the Museum acquired a number of works on paper during its Centennial. Among them was one of the few existing copies of Gardner's Photographic Sketch Book of the War, a collection of photographs taken by Civil War photographer Alexander Gardner, a contemporary of Matthew Brady. The first day this rare book was on display to the public, it attracted a crowd of more than 500 visitors, several of them Civil War reenactors notified of the showing via the Internet.

FEBRUARY 2001

Preparing to celebrate

Renovation of the Museum's interior continued throughout the winter, as did preparation for upcoming Centennial events, including Eternal Egypt: Masterworks of Ancient Art from The British Museum. In February, keepers (the British equivalent of curators) from that institution arrived to help install the exhibition at the Museum.

Fostering a sense of community

The Museum took pride in the grand opening of its renovated Professional Arts Building at the corner of Parkwood and Monroe, across from the Peristyle and the University of Toledo's Center for the Visual Arts. The building houses local nonprofit arts organizations, including the Toledo Symphony Orchestra and the Arts Commission of Greater Toledo. The Museum created this synergistic environment for a deeper sense of community for the arts.

MARCH 2 – MAY 27, 2001

Exploring Ancient EGYPT

The first of four major Centennial exhibitions, Eternal Egypt: Masterworks of Ancient Art from The British Museum, made its North American debut at the Museum. Featuring 144 magnificent and mysterious objects created from approximately 3100 B.C. to A.D. 400 as gifts to the gods, items for the afterlife, and luxuries for the wealthy, Eternal Egypt was organized by the American Federation of Arts and The British Museum.

Visiting an old friend

During Eternal Egypt, many visitors, including 6,120 children on school tours, took part in hands-on activities, interactive displays, and photo opportunities related to life in ancient Egypt; in the process, they used more than 20,000 pieces of paper for hieroglyphic rubbings. Visitors young and old also stopped by to say hello to a familiar "friend": following a lengthy absence for restoration, the coffin of Ta-mit was reinstalled in the Museum, thanks to a grant from the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund Museum Collections Accessibility Initiative. Ta-mit's coffin has been a Museum favorite for more than 90 years.

4,582

Eternal Egypt hosted a record 4,582 visitors during its three-day opening weekend. Of that number, nearly two-thirds came on Sunday for the Museum's Egyptian Family Festival. Thanks to Ford Motor Company, sponsor of Eternal Egypt's national tour, admission to the festival and exhibition was free that day.

APRIL

Making the list.

The Museum was featured in The Burlington Magazine, one of the most prestigious scholarly publications of the international art community. In its April issue, the publication ran an eight-page article on selected acquisitions made by the Toledo Museum of Art from 1990 through 2001. Twenty-two works from the Museum's internationally renowned collection were highlighted.

On April 18, 1901, the Toledo Museum of Art was incorporated. One hundred years later to the day, the Museum staff gathered to commemorate the occasion with speeches, song, and birthday cake.

Polling the public

As the community has played such an important role in the Museum's success, the public was asked to vote for its favorite works from the collection. Voters cast ballots in the People's Choice Campaign at the Museum or by visiting toledoblade.com; the top 35 to 40 vote getters will be featured in a postcard book to be published in late 2001. The People's Choice Campaign was underwritten by the Museum's Centennial Society, with additional support from The Blade and The Andersons.

Toasting SUCCESS

Members of the Centennial Society gathered to celebrate the Museum's 100th birthday – and to be honored for each donating $100 a year for the past ten years to help fund Centennial events. Guests were treated to cake and champagne as they toasted the Museum for its past and future success.

Announcing the Capital Campaign

When Centennial Society members gathered to toast the Museum's first century, Georgia and David Welles announced the capital campaign they are co-chairing to ensure the Museum's success in its second hundred years. Named Founders of the Second Century, the $60-million campaign had been engaged in quiet fund-raising since 2000, garnering $40 million before its announcement to the public. The remaining $20 million is to be raised by December 2002. Founders of the Second Century is earmarked to help underwrite the new sculpture garden, build the endowment, and fund the proposed Center for Glass.

Remembering the past

Two additional tributes to the Museum's past made their debut at the Centennial Society event: a book, The Enduring Legacy: A Pictorial History of the Toledo Museum of Art, and Framing the Dream: George W. Stevens, the first of three archival exhibitions planned for the Centenary. Both were made possible by members of the Centennial Society, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Huebner, and Mrs. Edward A. Kern. The book and exhibition were projects of the Museum archives, established in 1996.

MAY 11, 2001

Featuring the best in graphic arts

From late spring through mid-summer, the Museum hosted an exhibition of the works of Martin Puryear. Other graphic arts exhibitions held during the Centennial showcased the works of Giovanni Battista Piranesi, Jim Dine, Eadweard Muybridge, Lewis Wickes Hine, William Blake, Charles Meryon, and Jasper Johns. Puryear's Cane and Johns's Foirades/Fizzles, (shown here) were among accessions made during the past fiscal year.

Celebrating in STYLE

According to The Blade, the Museum's Centennial Ball "set a new benchmark for elegant entertaining." The black-tie event also raised $167,000 to create a new entrance to the Museum's School of Art and Design. Entertainment for the evening included Michael Feinstein and the Peter Duchin Orchestra.

Dedicating the sculpture garden

In 1920, Museum staff and trustees first made plans for an outdoor sculpture garden, but it was not until 2001 that such ideas were realized, largely through the generosity of two dedicated benefactors, Georgia and David K. Welles. Of the 22 extraordinary sculptures in the garden that bears their name, 8 were donated by the Welleses.

Welcoming sculptors

Several sculptors whose works are represented in the Welles Sculpture Garden attended the dedication. Earlier in the day, sculptor Magdalena Abakanowicz was a speaker at the Museum's sculpture garden symposium, which also featured Laurie D. Olin, nationally recognized landscape architect who designed the Welles Sculpture Garden, and Peter Stevens, sculptor and administrator of the estate of David Smith, who created 2 Circle IV, a work included in the garden.

Expanding access to ART

The Welles Sculpture Garden represents a collection of art that people in the community can enjoy whenever they wish. Following the dedication, some guests chose to join garden tours led by Museum Docents, while others opted to explore on their own.

Throwing the Party of the Century

Despite rainy weather, more than 7,000 members of the community attended the Party of the Century, a daylong celebration of the Museum's 100th birthday, complete with cake and the singing of "Happy Birthday."

The Museum coordinated the event to coincide with the Old West End Festival that took place that same weekend.

JUNE 2, 2001

A Partnership with the Community

Just as it has supported the Museum for the past century, the community enthusiastically supported the Party of the Century. A total of 150 Community Partners – representing government, the media, educational institutions, religious groups, service organizations, for-profit companies, and nonprofit agencies – provided financial or in-kind support that made the party possible.

Creating lots of fun

The Party of the Century featured 17 "Creation Stations" throughout the Museum and its grounds. Volunteers – among them Museum Aides and docents and employees of companies that paticipate in the Museum's Art & The Workplace Program – helped children and adults create their own art to commemorate the Museum's 100th Birthday.

More than 500 individuals, volunteered their time to ensure the party's success. In addition, 20 national and local musical groups organized by Robert Seeman, provided entertainment throughout the day.

Looking forward to a second glorious century

Edward Drummond Libbey once wrote about the Museum he helped found, "We owe it to ourselves . . . and to the future generations to see that our good work shall continue, that we lay a foundation so solid and complete that the future citizens of Toledo will look back upon this, our pioneer work, with praise and appreciation." This past year, the Museum and the community have indeed looked back with admiration on the pioneering work of not only the founders, but all those who have furthered the Museum's mission during the past hundred years. We – that future generation – now look forward to building upon that rich legacy.

REACHING OUT TO EDUCATORS

The Museum's Learning Resource Center, in conjunction with The Blade and WGTE–Channel 30, has established a tradition of holding "evenings for educators" during which teachers and home-schooling parents can learn more about the Museum and its rich educational resources, including the Art Reference Library and Visual Resources Collection.

School of Art and Design

Enrollment this fiscal year increased in every category: adult enrollment, at 631, was up 34 percent; enrollment in glass-blowing classes was 288, an increase of 27 percent; early childhood classes enrolled 424, a 9 percent increase; and enrollment in youth classes, at 1283, increased by 4 percent. There was also a 78 percent increase in the number of young people taking advantage of scholarships.

The school redesigned its class catalogue and provided a downloadable version on the Museum's website. It also introduced new courses for adults, among them art history minicourses; printmaking; and glass slumping and fusing. New adult courses in ceramics, metalsmithing, and bronze casting were offered in collaboration with the University of Toledo Department of Art.

Learning Resource Center

During fiscal year 2000, the center welcomed 2,676 patrons who used 4,434 resources. Workshops included In the Presence of Pharaohs (offered four times); Art and Literature; and the Second Annual Community Resources Workshop. The center hosted two in-service training sessions for Head Start teachers, and, in partnership with the University of Toledo Humanities Institute, presented three Saturday Academy workshops that drew more than 500 teachers and home educators. The Center's Second Annual Gala Evening for Educators was attended by 250 teachers and home educators.

Family Center

The center drew a wide variety of audiences this past year. Three day care groups from the Museum neighborhood visited each week, and a number of parent-organized play groups came once or twice a month. On Sundays, children were more likely to be accompanied by grandparents, fathers, and out-of-town visitors. Some families took advantage of both Tuesday and Thursday openings.

Total attendance was 11,000, an increase of 35 percent from the previous fiscal year, due in part to opening the Family Center an additional day each week. Average Tuesday attendance was 68; average Thursday attendance, 80; and average Sunday attendance, 57. Of the average weekly attendance of 205, 130 were children and 75, adults.

Discovery box lending increased roughly 6 percent, and the center's new Asian box was very popular. The refurbished Egyptian boxes were especially popular during Eternal Egypt.

VOTING FOR A NEW WORK

Members of The Apollo Society – each of whom contributes $5,000 annually toward the purchase of art for the Museum – selected a 9th century Pala sculpture, Stele of Varaha rescuing the Earth. The work, from Northeast India, illustrates the story of the great boar Varaha, a manifestation of the Hindu god of Vishnu, who defeated the demon Hiranyaksha.

The Museum concluded the fiscal year with a small surplus from operations. This financial activity included a number of special events to celebrate the Museum's Centenary – the Community Birthday Party, the Eternal Egypt exhibition, the opening of the new Sculpture Garden – and the conclusion of many of the building preservation projects that were underway throughout the year. The investment in these celebrations demonstrated the Museum's use of its resources to generate excitement, to involve the community, and to build anticipation for the next 100 years of service to our region.

The financial stability of the Museum has always been attributable to the generous support of our members, donors and other contributors, as well as to the sound management of our investments, endowments and revenue-producing activities that are the sources for our operating funds.

The Museum received outstanding support from the community last fiscal year, with annual giving increasing by 26% and totaling more than $4.9 million.

The Museum received outstanding support from the community last fiscal year, with annual giving increasing by 26% and totaling more than $4.9 million.This significant increase was due in part to the many contributions that the Museum received for events and programs to celebrate the Museum's Centenary. It was also a result of the many experienced fund raising volunteers and staff who helped to broaden the Museum's base of support. Most of all, however, it was due to the generosity of individuals, corporations, and foundations, all of whom continue to recognize the importance of the Museum and the arts in our community. Please know how very grateful we are for this continuing support.

President's Council

The President's Council recognizes individuals who make annual contributions of $1,000 or more. These gifts support the Museum's annual operations and help the Museum maintain its internationally respected collection and educational programs. Other individual gifts include in-kind gifts of art and donor directed gifts. Members of multiple donor groups are designated with the following symbols:

a = Apollo Society.
Members of the Apollo Society contribute $5,000 annually and assist the Museum as a group with art acquisitions. Since its founding in 1986, the Apollo Society has contributed nearly $2.5 million to acquire more than 30 works of art ranging from ancient Egypt to modern times.

c = Centennial Society
Members of the Centennial Society provided a gift of $1,000, either over a period of years or at one time, to help commemorate the Museum's Centenary through exhibitions, programs, publications, and events. Nearly 1,000 members made gifts, totaling close to $1 million.

l = Libbey Circle
Members of the Libbey Circle have designated the Museum as a beneficiary through testamentary provisions or other planned giving vehicles. Realized gifts through the Libbey Circle provide a lasting legacy that help to preserve the Museum's collection and programs for generations to come.

The Museum has received extraordinary support for its capital and endowment campaign, Founders of the Second Century. To date, more than $40 million has been received, supporting projects like the Professional Arts Building, Museum Preservation, the Georgia and David K. Welles Sculpture Garden, and endowments for special exhibitions, educational programs, and the William Hutton Curator of European Paintings Endowment. The goal for the campaign is $60 million, and reaching it will allow us to complete the signature project: a Center for Glass to house the Museum's comprehensive glass collection and glass-making facilities. We hope to raise the remaining $20 million by December, 2002. Our deepest gratitude goes to the following individuals, corporations, and foundations who have contributed to the campaign as of June 30, 2001:

Dr. and Mrs. Bunk Adams
